Scope and remit

The Seafish Fisheries Management and Innovation Group (FMIG) is a UK cross-industry group that brings industry and other stakeholders together in an integrated, interdisciplinary and collaborative manner to share factual information about catching sector issues relating to technical, innovation, automation and (scientific) fisheries management developments. This helps to ensure all stakeholders have a broad knowledge of the issues. It is a key forum to allow individual interests to have a voice and to act as a hub to provide factual information that is both accessible and understandable.

The Fisheries Management and Innovation Group (FMIG) is autonomous, however its activities are reported to the Seafish-facilitated Common Language Group.

- The scope of discussions should cover:
 - Delivering legislative and regulatory requirements: discards and meeting the requirements of the landing obligation including the use of existing flexibilities and exemptions, choke risks and mitigation measures; Bycatch Reduction Plans (BCRPs); Fully Documented Fisheries (FDF) schemes and other CFP flexibilities.
 - Stock assessment issues: prioritised data limited stocks and the environmental impacts of wild capture fishing (both direct ecosystem issues and environmental footprint issues).
 - Technology, Innovation and Automation: selective gear developments, geographical digital traceability and fleet efficiency issues etc.
- The scope of discussions should not include (to avoid duplication with other Seafish issues groups):
 - Aquaculture (see Aquaculture Common Issues Group)
 - Ethical issues concerning labour (see Seafood Ethics Common Language Group)
 - Environmental sustainability, product integrity and consumption/markets/trade (Common Language Group)
 - Direct commercial promotions

- The FMIG mailing list is representative of all relevant interests across the UK seafood supply chain including:
 - the catching sector
 - the whole UK supply chain including retail and foodservice
 - Government
 - non-governmental organisations
 - legislators
 - regulators
 - technologists and scientists, and, where appropriate, the media.
- The target audience for agreements, advice or briefings from this group should include fish buyers, retailers and consumers at the minimum.
- In planning the agenda for meetings Seafish will seek information from the whole supply chain, as well as consult with industry experts.
- Seafish will facilitate and provide the secretariat for the group. The group should meet twice a year. All information produced by the group should be placed in the public domain. Seafish should maintain a FMIG web page, and make all minutes for each meeting publicly available.

Participation at FMIG meetings

- Seafish to nominate a Chair which should be endorsed by the whole group.
- Meetings should be themed to focus the group's attention.
- Participation at FMIG meetings will be managed to ensure the audience is broadly representative of all relevant interests across the UK seafood supply chain, and attendance will be limited to no more than one representative per organisation for non-levy payers, unless agreed in advance by the Secretary.
- In a spirit of collaboration participants should attend FMIG meetings: to keep-up-to-date with the latest developments; to be part of a cross-industry structured discussion; to listen to the issues raised by other parts of the industry; to raise their own issues; and to network with other participants or make new contacts.
- The FMIG Chair will manage the meeting. The Secretary will compose the programme, invite the speakers, and prepare the technical equipment needed.
- We will share the list of attendees (business/organisation name) in advance of the meeting and in the published minutes.
- There are assumptions about expected behaviours at FMIG meetings, particularly in relation to how delegates react to speakers and presentations. The FMIG is there to initiate constructive dialogue on key issues that have the potential to impact on the reputation of the seafood industry. Whilst there may be many different opinions, and there is the potential for the debate to become a little heated on occasion, this should never result in personal or derogative comments being directed at any of the speakers, the Chair or anyone else in the room. Anyone attending FMIG meetings should respect this and anyone not doing so will be asked to leave.

Invited speakers

- Speakers will be invited to participate and given a brief on what should be covered in the presentation. Presentations should be as factual as possible.
- Speakers will be identified in the minutes and in the presentations which are published afterwards. Subject to the presenter providing express permission.
- The presentation should not exceed the allocated time and should be specifically focussed on addressing the topic/brief, rather than being a descriptor of a company, organisation or commercial service used for promotional purposes.
- Presentations should be submitted in advance of the meeting, as requested by the Secretary.

Communication around the meetings
